Escape Perihan Magden

“There are questions like that. Questions that must never be asked. Subjects that must never be brought up.”

Time passes slowly in the hotel rooms. This is what the daughter thinks. They’ve been moving since the beginning, in and out of hotels, sometimes staying for months, sometimes for a mere hour, but never with luggage, heavy things weighing them down. The mother and daughter are singular, a “Moon Unit,” revolving so far away that no one can touch them. They form attachments to no one, not the pool boy who watches the daughter swim for hours, nor the girl at the front desk who counts the moments she sees the daughter as little good luck charms for her day. They are bound together with a secret language, the beautiful girl loved solely by her mother, who will never ever leave her side.

Prize-winning Turkish novelist and journalist Perihan Magden delivers a heartbreakingly moving meditation on the intense and sometimes isolated love between a mother and daughter against the world.
